

| Monday, 17 August 2026 |                                                                                                       |                                                                                                                            |                                                                                                                               |                                                                                                                                              |
|------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Time                   | Mezzanine -Room 5                                                                                 | Mezzanine -Room 6                                                                                                      | Mezzanine -Room 7                                                                                                         | Mezzanine -Room 8                                                                                                                        |
| 08:00 - 09:00          | Registration desk open                                                                                |                                                                                                                            |                                                                                                                               |                                                                                                                                              |
| 08:30 - 09:00          | MORNING COFFEE                                                                                 |                                                                                                                            |                                                                                                                               |                                                                                                                                              |
| 09:00 - 12:00          | Workshop 1:Building andRunningRecognisers withEcosounds (PhilipEichinski)         | Workshop 2:Dandhigu Yimbana:Listening onCountry and theEthics ofEcoacoustics (LeahBarclay)         | Workshop 3: TheHitchhiker's Guideto AcousticLocalisation(Frontier Labs)                                       | Workshop 5: Usingthe EcoCommonsPlatform to RunSpecies DistributionModels withAcousticOccurrence Data(EcoCommons) |
| 12:00 - 13:00          | LUNCH                                                                                          |                                                                                                                            |                                                                                                                               |                                                                                                                                              |
|                        | Film screening: Sound Guardians                                                                |                                                                                                                            |                                                                                                                               |                                                                                                                                              |
| 13:00 - 16:00          | Workshop 1 (Cont.):Building andRunningRecognisers withEcosounds (PhilipEichinski) | Workshop 2 (Cont.):Dandhigu Yimbana:Listening onCountry and theEthics ofEcoacoustics (LeahBarclay) | Workshop 4:Developing BestPractice Guidelinesfor Ecoacoustics inAustralia (May-LeNg, KristenThompson) | Workshop 6: FromPriorities toPractice: Building aGlobal Bioacoustics"Network ofNetworks" (JohnQuinn)                 |
| 16:00 - 16:30          | AFTERNOON TEA                                                                                  |                                                                                                                            |                                                                                                                               |                                                                                                                                              |
| 16:00 - 17:00          | Registration desk open                                                                                |                                                                                                                            |                                                                                                                               |                                                                                                                                              |
| 18:00 - 20:00          | Welcome function                                                                               |                                                                                                                            |                                                                                                                               |                                                                                                                                              |

Workshop registration form sent to registered delegates.

Tuesday, 18 August

| Time          | Mezzanine - Rooms 7 & 8                                                                                                                                                                   | Mezzanine - Room 6                                                                                                                            |
|---------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 08:00 - 09:00 | REGISTRATION                                                                                                                                                                       |                                                                                                                                               |
| 09:00 - 09:30 | Introduction and Welcome to Country                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                               |
| 09:30 - 10:30 | Plenary: From soundscapes to individuals: zooming into marine ecosystems through soundXavier Raick                                                                      |                                                                                                                                               |
| 10:30 - 11:00 | MORNING COFFEE                                                                                                                                                                     |                                                                                                                                               |
| 11:00 - 13:00 | Ecology: General                                                                                                                                                                   | SYMPOSIUM: Listening as Ecological Practice: Ecoacoustics, Artistic Research, and Community Engagement                                 |
|               | Session Chair: Juan Carlos Azofeifa-Solano                                                                                                                                         | Session Chair: Leah Barclay                                                                                                            |
| 11:00 - 11:15 | Phenological shifts in low-latitude frogs revealed by 15-year acoustic monitoring and deep learningKaede Kimura                                                                | Listening to Ecosystems: The Ethics of Ecoacoustics and Interdisciplinary Perspectives of Field RecordingLeah Barclay              |
| 11:15 - 11:30 | Understanding the mechanistic pathways for soundscape ecological interpretation: a case from coral reefsJuan Carlos Azofeifa-Solano                                            | Hearing Now: Connecting people to place through soundscape performance in Noosa, AustraliaFinley Wegener                           |
| 11:30 - 11:45 | Acoustic arrays and acoustic spatial capture recapture (aSCR) for estimating abundance and habitat preferences of the Critically Endangered Western Ground ParrotJoseph Jantke | Bioacoustic Playback as Ecological Intervention in Creative PracticeJesse Budel                                                    |
| 11:45 - 11:50 | Revealing termite behavioural responses to drought using ecoacousticsAlex Flynn Taylor                                                                                         | Soundscapes Under Influence An artistic and scientific exploration of semantic and aesthetic soundscape listeningPhilippe Woloszyn |
| 11:50 - 11:55 | Divergent Scaling in Fire-Maintained Landscapes: Mono- vs. Multifractal Soundscape Geometry as Indicators of Avian Diversity and Forest StructureGabriel Cahalan               |                                                                                                                                               |
| 11:55 - 12:00 | Preliminary investigation into the Effects of Traffic Surges on Gibbon Vocal Behavior in a Forested Landscape of West Sumatra, IndonesiaUmar Fhadli Kennedy                    |                                                                                                                                               |
| 12:00 - 12:15 | Impacts of Cattle Grazing on Tropical Savanna Bird Communities Revealed Through Ecoacoustic MonitoringLin Schwarzkopf                                                          | Researching Songlines with new technologiesJacinta Tobin                                                                           |

Tuesday, 18 August

| Time          | Mezzanine - Rooms 7 & 8                                                                                                                                                                                          | Mezzanine - Room 6                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|---------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 11:00 - 13:00 | Ecology: General (Cont.)Session Chair: Juan Carlos Azofeifa-Solano                                                                                                                         | SYMPOSIUM: Listening as Ecological Practice: Ecoacoustics, Artistic Research, and Community Engagement (Cont.)Session Chair: Leah Barclay                                        |
| 12:15 - 12:30 | Using Ecoacoustics to identify cold- and hotspots of birds in Victoria, AustraliaMarina D. A. Scarpelli                                                                                               | Sounding Reef Futures: Ecoacoustic Methods for Tracing Loss, Persistence, and RenewalDiana Chester                                                                                          |
| 12:30 - 12:45 | Our Ears on Recovery: using Passive Acoustic Monitoring and BirdNET to reveal avian responses to changing fire regimesEleanor Hadfield                                                                | Sonic Vision: Learning to Read the Landscape Through ListeningPeter Coulter                                                                                                                 |
| 12:45 - 12:50 | Predicting ecological condition in agricultural landscapes using a simulated reference point framework: passive acoustic monitoring, satellite remote sensing, and elastic net regressionDavid Tucker | Attunement as Method: Spatial Audio Installation and Ecological EncounterKristina Dutton                                                                                                    |
| 12:50 - 13:05 | Beyond presence-absence: ecoacoustic detection of complex bird community responses to fireKaren Rowe                                                                                                  | Acoustic Sovereignty as a theoretical frameworkTyler Andrew Lackey                                                                                                                          |
| 13:05 - 14:00 | LUNCH                                                                                                                                                                                                     |                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| 13:20 - 14:00 | Lunchtime workshop: Open Ecoacoustics: scaling acoustic data, verification and analysis, and shaping the platform's next phase                                                                            |                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| 14:00 - 15:00 | Methods: Hardware and InfrastructureSession Chair: Anthony Truskinger                                                                                                                      | Conservation 1Session Chair: Robert Clemens                                                                                                                                      |
| 14:00 - 14:15 | Open Ecoacoustics: New Features and Platform UpdatesAnthony Truskinger                                                                                                                                | FAIR Practices in Ecoacoustics: State of the Art Review, Challenges and Opportunities for Data StewardshipJoëlle Stocker                                                                    |
| 14:15 - 14:30 | EcoCommons: Scalable, Reproducible Infrastructure for Ecological Modelling and Conservation DecisionsRyan Newis                                                                                       | Improving survey design and distribution estimates for Powerful Owl ( Ninox strenua ) using passive acoustic monitoring, occupancy modelling, and spatial optimisationRobert Clemens |

Tuesday, 18 August

| Time          | Mezzanine - Rooms 7 & 8                                                                                                                                                                              | Mezzanine - Room 6                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
|---------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 14:00 - 15:00 | Methods: Hardware and Infrastructure (Cont.)                                                                                                                                                  | Conservation 1 (Cont.)                                                                                                                                                                                        |
|               | Session Chair: Anthony Truskinger                                                                                                                                                             | Session Chair: Robert Clemens                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| 14:30 - 14:45 | Is Conservation Tech Ready for What's Next?Lisa Cawthen                                                                                                                                   | Monitoring a cryptic endangered amphibian: comparing traditional surveys and acoustic monitoring, identifying drivers of detection probability and fire-regime impacts on Watson's tree frogLouise Durkin |
| 14:45 - 15:00 | Improving detectability of bioacoustic signals on edge devicesKyle N. & Susan Campbell                                                                                                           | A decade of dialect change in a vulnerable Hawaiian honeycreeper revealed by passive acoustic monitoring and birdsong embeddingsBenjamin L. GOTTESMAN                                                     |
| 15:00 - 15:30 | AFTERNOON TEA                                                                                                                                                                                 |                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| 15:30 - 17:30 | SYMPOSIUM: Arrays &amp; Networks                                                                                                                                                              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
|               | Session Chair: Nick Friedman                                                                                                                                                                  |                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| 15:30 - 15:45 | Synthesizing long-term historical acoustic data into useful baseline calling activity for vocal vertebrate communities across the TERN networkSlade Allen-Ankins                          |                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| 15:45 - 16:00 | Listening to Managalas: Large-Scale Biodiversity Monitoring in a Community-Led Conservation Landscape in New GuineaKarlina Indraswari                                                     |                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
|               |                                                                                                                                                                                                      |                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| 16:00 - 16:15 | A remotely deployed multi-sensor biodiversity assessment tool integrating passive acoustic monitoring, camera traps, and satellite remote sensing for agricultural landscapesDavid Tucker |                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| 16:15 - 16:30 | Forest Voices: Landscape-scale monitoring for forest fauna using acoustic sensors, artificial intelligence and robust analyticsBrad Law                                                   |                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
|               |                                                                                                                                                                                                      |                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
|               |                                                                                                                                                                                                      |                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |

Tuesday, 18 August

| Time          | Mezzanine - Rooms 7 & 8                                                                                                                                                              | Mezzanine - Room 6 |
|---------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------|
| 15:30 - 17:30 | SYMPOSIUM: Arrays &amp; Networks (Cont.)Session Chair: Nick Friedman                                                                                               |                    |
| 16:30 - 16:45 | NOAA's Passive Acoustics Strategic Initiative – Building Open-Source Applications, Analytical Capability, Community Data Standards and Ecological MetricsSofie Van Parijs |                    |
| 16:45 - 16:50 | Insights on fish sounds from portable audio-video arrayJuan Carlos Azofeifa-Solano                                                                                        |                    |
| 17:15 - 18:15 | Annual General Meeting (ACE)                                                                                                                                                  |                    |
| 18:00 - 20:00 | POSTER SESSION                                                                                                                                                                |                    |

Wednesday, 19 August

| Time          | Mezzanine - Rooms 7 & 8                                                                                                                               | Mezzanine - Room 6                                                                                                                                                        |
|---------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 08:30 - 09:00 | REGISTRATION                                                                                                                                   |                                                                                                                                                                           |
| 09:00 - 09:15 | Introduction and Housekeeping                                                                                                                  |                                                                                                                                                                           |
| 09:15 - 10:15 | Plenary: From noise to neighbourhoods: the ecological, cultural, and evolutionary forces shaping soundscapesDominique Potvin        |                                                                                                                                                                           |
| 10:15 - 10:45 | MORNING COFFEE                                                                                                                                 |                                                                                                                                                                           |
| 10:45 - 12:45 | Soundscapes 1                                                                                                                                  | Ecology: Predictive                                                                                                                                                |
|               | Session Chair: Simon Linke                                                                                                                     | Session Chair: Sebastian Hoefer                                                                                                                                    |
| 10:45 - 11:00 | Soundscape variation among habitats at Lizard IslandLeo Chiu-Leung                                                                         | Passive acoustic monitoring as a tool for assessing ecosystem gradients in Africa's tropical savannahConsolata Gitau                                           |
| 11:00 - 11:15 | Listening Together: How the Land Libraries Project has Connected Private Landholders with the Acoustic Tools for ConservationJoel Stibbard | Using soil vibrations to analyze the effects of unsustainable selective logging on soil invertebrate communitiesJoakim Vaagen                                  |
| 11:15 - 11:30 | Listening across landscapes: tracking ecological communities through space and timeSimon Linke                                             | Calibrating condition calculations for acoustic data: A case study of the imperiled woodland bird community of southeast AustraliaCourtney Melton              |
| 11:30 - 11:35 | Linking Ecoacoustic and Soundscape Indices to Assess Tourism Pressure in a Thai World Heritage SiteJiraporn Teampanpong                    | Sounds of the seascape: Can passive acoustic monitoring assist in evaluating the 'success' of marine restoration?Alice Howie                                   |
| 11:35 - 11:40 | An automated approach for detection and classification of Australian mysticete soundsJuan Carlos Azofeifa-Solano                           |                                                                                                                                                                           |
| 11:40 - 11:45 | Unique soundscapes reflect the diversity of habitats in a tropical seascapeClelia Mula                                                     |                                                                                                                                                                           |
| 11:45 - 12:00 | Landscape modification effect on Bats: an Ecoacoustic assessment in lowland Northeast IndiaPratik Das                                      | Decadal Trends in Migration Phenology of Eastern Indian Ocean Pygmy Blue Whales Using Long-Term Passive Acoustic Monitoring in South West AustraliaBrodee Lowe |
| 12:00 - 12:15 | Diel patterns of ecoacoustic indices show links to habitatJames Kemp                                                                       | How passive acoustic and traditional monitoring estimate bird diversity across habitatsJarek Scanferla                                                         |

Wednesday, 19 August

| Time          | Mezzanine - Rooms 7 & 8                                                                                                                          | Mezzanine - Room 6                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
|---------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 10:45 - 12:45 | Soundscapes 1 (Cont.)Session Chair: Simon Linke                                                                                | Ecology: Predictive (Cont.)Session Chair: Sebastian Hoefer                                                                                                                                                  |
| 12:15 - 12:30 | Characterising Tingle Forest Soundscapes Using Passive Acoustic MonitoringLauren Amy Hawkins                                          | Acoustic identity: linking signature whistles and visual identification in a threatened dolphin populationAmber Crittenden                                                                                         |
| 12:30 - 12:45 |                                                                                                                                                  | The Acoustic Death Hypothesis: Climate-driven Constraints on Anuran Communication and SurvivalNikhil Modak                                                                                                         |
| 12:45 - 13:45 | LUNCH                                                                                                                                     |                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| 12:45 - 13:45 | Lunchtime Workshop: Wildlife Acoustics From Micro 2 to SM5Bat: Simplifying Passive Recorder Workflow with the Song Meter Configurator App |                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| 13:45 - 14:45 | Panel session 1: Ecoacoustics for monitoring                                                                                              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| 14:45 - 15:45 | Methods: Detection 1Session Chair: Paul McDonald                                                                               | SYMPOSIUM: Multidisciplinary approach to behavioural and ecoacoustics challenges of avian vocal mimicrySession Chair: Concepción Cortés Zulueta                                                             |
| 14:45 - 15:00 | Beyond Fixed Windows: A Data-Driven Approach to Acoustic Event Segmentation in EcoacousticsThomas Napier                              | Eurasian Blackbirds ( Turdus merula ) mimic anthropogenic sounds and vocalizations from invasive species, reflecting human impact and the ecological degradation of the soundscapeConcepción Cortés Zulueta |
| 15:00 - 15:15 | Fast Species Recognisers from Acoustic Embeddings: Benchmarking Performance and Spatial TransferabilityFranco Ka Wah Leung            | Composers not ARUs: what the lyrebird's mimetic song tells us about animal culture and conservationFiona Backhouse                                                                                                 |

Wednesday, 19 August

| Time          | Mezzanine - Rooms 7 & 8                                                                                                                                                                                    | Mezzanine - Room 6                                                                                                      |
|---------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 14:45 - 15:45 | Methods: Detection 1                                                                                                                                                                                | SYMPOSIUM: Multidisciplinary approach to behavioural and                                                         |
|               | Session Chair: Paul McDonald                                                                                                                                                                        | Session Chair: Concepción Cortés Zulueta                                                                         |
| 15:15 - 15:30 | The Bush Bird Classifier (BBC) provides a road-tested, custom recogniser for automating biodiversity assessments of the woodland birds of south-east Australia, including TasmaniaPaul McDonald | What mimics make of soundscapes: avian vocal mimicry and Australia's lyrebirdsAnastasia Dalziell             |
| 15:30 - 15:45 | Evaluating Audio Foundation Models for Freshwater Acoustic MonitoringToby Gifford                                                                                                               | Large-scale NLP detection of vocal mimicry in Australian community science bird observationsRichard Littauer |
| 15:45 - 16:15 | AFTERNOON TEA                                                                                                                                                                                       |                                                                                                                         |
| 16:15 - 17:15 | Plenary: What role will ecoacoustics play in the post 2030 conservation agenda, and how can we contribute?Zuzana Burivalova                                                              |                                                                                                                         |
| 17:30 - 18:30 | Annual General Meeting (ISE)                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                                                                         |
| 19:00- 22:00  | OPTIONAL DINNER; OCHRE RESTAURANT (TBC)                                                                                                                                                             |                                                                                                                         |

Thursday, 20 August

| Time          | Mezzanine - Rooms 7 & 8                                                                                                                                                                              | Mezzanine - Room 6                                                                                                                                                   |
|---------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 08:30 - 09:00 | REGISTRATION                                                                                                                                                                                  |                                                                                                                                                                      |
| 09:00 - 09:15 | Introduction and Housekeeping                                                                                                                                                                 |                                                                                                                                                                      |
| 09:15 - 10:15 | Plenary: Tuning in together: Collaborative sound science reveals resonance across people, nature, and placeWendy Erb                                                               |                                                                                                                                                                      |
| 10:15 - 10:45 | MORNING COFFEE                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                      |
| 11:45 - 12:45 | Bioacoustics 1                                                                                                                                                                                | Methods: Detection 2                                                                                                                                          |
|               | Session Chair: Liz Znidarsic                                                                                                                                                                  | Session Chair: Philip Eichinski                                                                                                                               |
| 10:45 - 11:00 | Description and analysis of estuarine crocodile ( Crocodylus porosus ) underwater and airborne sounds reveals a graded repertoire and potential differential functionSonnie Flores | YAAAT: Yet Another Audio Annotation ToolAshlae Blum'e                                                                                                     |
| 11:00 - 11:15 | Event-Driven Acoustic Monitoring for Asian Elephant Rumble Detection Using Edge-Based ClassificationAekkarach Suwan                                                                       | How much is the model missing? Human-in-the-loop iterative clustering for threshold-agnostic acoustic validationCallan Alexander                          |
| 11:15 - 11:30 | How useful is captive training data for automatically detecting wild acoustic vocalisations? A case study on African lionsJonathan Growcott                                               | Scaling species verification and recogniser improvement with citizen science verificationPhilip Eichinski                                                 |
| 11:30 - 11:35 | Hoot's there? Acoustic localisation of the Christmas Island hawk-owl using passive acoustic monitoringMayuri Kotian                                                                       | A novel spectrogram-matching method for manual verification of wildlife calls: bats as a case studyLachlan McRae                                          |
| 11:35 - 11:40 |                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Comparative performance of BirdNET, Perch and VicFrogNET for automated acoustic classification of birds and frogs in south-eastern AustraliaKristian Bell |
| 11:40 - 11:45 |                                                                                                                                                                                                      |                                                                                                                                                                      |

Thursday, 20 August

| Time          | Mezzanine - Rooms 7 & 8                                                                                                                                       | Mezzanine - Room 6                                                                                                                                                       |
|---------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 11:45 - 12:45 | Bioacoustics 1 (Cont.)                                                                                                                                 | Conservation 2                                                                                                                                                    |
|               | Session Chair: Liz Znidersic                                                                                                                           | Session Chair: Sheryn Brodie                                                                                                                                      |
| 11:45 - 12:00 | A semi-automated acoustic survey method for Southern Whiteface – a threatened passerine of inland AustraliaJasmin Pratt                            | Illegal firewood harvest surveillance using specialised audio classification and localisation algorithmsJacob Maher                                                  |
| 12:00 - 12:15 | Occupancy of Glossy Black-Cockatoos using passive acoustics and conventional surveysDaniella Teixeira                                              | Calling out loud: influence of land-use change, social context, climate, and body condition on amphibian calling behaviour in the Western GhatsVijay Karthick |
| 12:15 - 12:30 | Passive acoustic recorders and a new call-recogniser software expand knowledge of the Plains-wanderer in Queensland’s Channel CountryTessa Manning | Using a customised BirdNET acoustic recogniser to detect and estimate population densities of Noisy Miners ( Manorina melanocephala )Kieran STEPHENSON-BANKS  |
| 12:30 - 12:35 | A call for water – investigating the water requirements for the Endangered Australasian bittern Botaurus poiciloptilusElizabeth Znidersic   | Acoustic monitoring to support species conservation on Christmas IslandSheryn Brodie                                                                          |
| 12:35 - 12:40 | Integrated monitoring for cryptic Black-breasted Button quailSydney Collett                                                                        |                                                                                                                                                                          |
| 12:40 - 12:45 | Social and behavioural contexts of pygmy blue whale vocalisationsAndrew Davenport                                                                  |                                                                                                                                                                          |
| 12:45 - 13:45 | LUNCH                                                                                                                                                         |                                                                                                                                                                          |
| 13:05 - 13:45 | Lunchtime Workshop: How to PAM – Theory and Praxis of Deploying an Acoustic Recorder (Kieran Aland, Frontier Labs)                                     |                                                                                                                                                                          |
| 13:45 - 14:45 | Ecology: Tracking                                                                                                                                      | Soundscapes 2 &amp; Conservation 3                                                                                                                                |
|               | Session Chair: Jacopo Bartholomew                                                                                                                      | Session Chair: Jessie Moyes                                                                                                                                       |
| 13:45 - 14:00 | Evaluating Passive Acoustic Monitoring for the Detection of Invasive Deer Compared to Camera TrapsJacopo Bartholomew                               | The cost of delay: Quantifying information loss from delayed ecological monitoring across biomesArdiantiono                                                   |

Thursday, 20 August

| Time          | Mezzanine - Rooms 7 & 8                                                                                                                                       | Mezzanine - Room 6                                                                                                                                     |
|---------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 13:45 - 14:45 | Ecology: Tracking (Cont.)                                                                                                                              | Soundscapes 2 &amp; Conservation 3 (Cont.)                                                                                                      |
|               | Session Chair: Jacopo Bartholomew                                                                                                                      | Session Chair: Jessie Moyses                                                                                                                    |
| 14:00 - 14:15 | From Calls to Counts: Estimating Koala Abundance Using Integrated Ecoacoustic and Visual SurveysJustin Cally                                       | Hearing the Bigger Picture: Landscape-scale Acoustic Monitoring of Fauna in NSW Timber Production ForestsLeroy GONSALVES                    |
| 14:15 - 14:30 | The Sound Awakens: Continuous acoustic monitoring of fauna responses to flooding events at Moodie Swamp in northern VictoriaJo-Anne Geddes         | Listening to Lady Bay: Passive Acoustic Monitoring and Data Science Approaches to Reef Soundscape AnalysisTristan Louth-Robins              |
| 14:30 - 14:45 | Mapping the "Social Active Space": Integrating Sound Propagation Physics with CNN-based Monitoring to Understand Galago SocialityLaetitia Confuron | Multi year passive acoustic observations of offshore fish chorusing in the northwest of Western AustraliaLauren Amy Hawkins                 |
|               |                                                                                                                                                               | Accounting for biological, physical, and computational filters in ecoacoustics: lessons learned from coral reefsJuan Carlos Azofeifa-Solano |
|               |                                                                                                                                                               | Using recognisers to identify bird community condition for informing a natural capital accountJessie Moyses                                 |
| 14:45 - 15:15 | AFTERNOON TEA                                                                                                                                          |                                                                                                                                                        |
| 15:15 - 16:00 | Closing ceremony                                                                                                                                       |                                                                                                                                                        |

